№ 327.

To the Daily Gazetteer.

SIR,

Have conſtantly and carefully read all the moſt material Papers that have been writ for and againſt the preſent Adminiſtration for ſeveral Years paſt, particularly the London Journal, Free Briton, the Craftſman, and Fog's Journal, and lately, the Daily Gazetteer.

I have endeavoured to keep myſelf as clear as poſſible from all Party Prejudices; but cannot ſay whether I am not caught with it at laſt. I know not but the Publick may think ſo. But I hope to convince the reaſonable Part of Mankind, that I am not now taking Party, or entering into the Defence of any Scheme of State Policy for Money. I am very ſure, that I ſhall meet with Friends and Enemies in any thing I can ſay. As to Fog's Journal, I think it is plainly calculated to influence the Nation as much as poſſible, to bring about a Revolution of Government, and to ſet aſide the Proteſtant Succeſſion in the preſent Royal Family. If Mr. Fog means any thing elſe, he has been moſt unhappily miſtaken; for I never met with any one Man in my Life, who did not take this to be his true Deſign and Intention: And this being plainly the Caſe, I could not think it worth while to ſpend one quarter of an Hour's Time in diſputing with ſuch an Author. If I can now convince the People of England that Religion has been lately miſtaken and perverted, and that we ought now at leaſt to ſubmit to an Independent Hierarchy, as a different and diſtinct Legiſlature from the State or Civil Power; he may make what Progreſs he can in this Point, without much Diſturbance from me, any farther than as it may be juſt neceſſary to ſhew, that he ſets himſelf up as a Fool and a Coxcomb, which, perhaps, may be thought ſaying a bold thing againſt a Man of his Wit and Humour.

But I am ſorry that the Craftſman, who writes upon other Principles, ſhould have approv'd himſelf as good a Friend and Ally to the Jacobites and Papiſts. He is in the Intereſt of Liberty, and writes upon Principles perfectly conſiſtent with the Engliſh Conſtitution: But he had rather the whole Nation ſhould be damn'd, than that one Man in it, whom he has a particular Spite againſt, ſhould be ſaved. He has all along employ'd his utmoſt Artifice and Malice to lay the Blame of every thing that can happen wrong, either at home or abroad, upon one Honourable Gentleman, as if his Honourable Perſon had been made the Governor of the World, and could manage the whole Univerſe, becauſe he can controul and keep down the Craftſman.

But there is no Conſequence in all this; Things happen wrong, and many Things will fall out that may be complained of under any Miniſtry or Adminiſtration in the World. But can the Craftſman remedy this? or can he put the Nation into any ſure Way of preventing it? O yes! turn out the Men in Power, and take him and his Friends in; this is a ſafe and ſure Method of preventing any Inconveniencies for the future, and no doubt but the Craftſman would give the Nation a Security of five or ſix Millions, or, at leaſt, ſave ſo much in an annual Revenue, if they would but change the Miniſtry, and take him and his Friends in. But then, I think, we ought to have ſuch a real Security, or, at leaſt, ſome Security or other, before we try the Experiment, which I do not find has been ever yet propoſed. If the People of England will be thus gulled and deluded, they may change their Miniſtries and Parliaments every Year, and ſtill make Things worſe and worſe; but if the Craftſman can give us any real Security, he ought to make his Propoſals, which he has never hitherto done.

This Writer has ranſacked all Hiſtory for wicked Miniſters, devouring Tyrants, and States or Societies of Men, who have ruined themſelves, and brought on national Deſtruction by their own Degeneracy, Corruption, Loſs of publick Spirit and Virtue, and a general Proſtitution of Honour and Conſcience to Avarice, Ambition, and the moſt unnatural and profuſe Pleaſures.

No doubt but a Man of any Reading might find Inſtances enough of this in the Hiſtory of every Country, and the general Hiſtory of the World: But where the Craftſman can find any thing of this in any Age or Country, he applies it to the preſent Adminiſtration, and lays the whole Blame of every thing that can happen amiſs, or contrary to our Wiſhes, either at home or abroad, upon one ſingle Man, as if he had the whole Government of the World, and was to be accountable for every thing which theſe wiſe Men might otherwiſe reckon Blunders of Providence, and which they would certainly blame God himſelf for, if they had no body elſe to charge it upon.

If the People of England are generally corrupt and profligate, and will take Money againſt Honour and Conſcience, the Miniſter has brought this about; it was never done before, and no body does it now but his Creatures.

If the general Profuſeneſs of the labouring People ſinks the Profits of our Trade, and drives it away to other Places where Labour is cheaper, the Miniſter muſt be accountable for it, for 'tis he who ſupports them in ſuch Extravagancy, and enables them to loſe their Trade, and live beyond their Ability, the Profits of our Growth and Manufactures, and the common Intereſt of the Nation. If Tradeſmen muſt live like Gentry and Princes, and then break and ruin themſelves, and thouſands of other Families; this is the Miniſter's Fault, who might prevent it if he pleaſed. In ſhort, I do not believe the Craftſman thinks that God governs the World, or orders any thing in the Courſe of Providence as it ought to be. He has ſet up a Prime Miniſter in England, who under the plauſible Pretences and Appearances of publick Good, is like to ruin the Univerſe; and 'tis impoſſible that any thing ſhould go right till this Gentleman is ſet aſide, and the Craftſman ſubſtituted in his room; for he, no doubt, would make a very good Sub-Governor of the World, and undo all Mankind as well as he has this Nation.

But for the Time to come, I ſhall watch this Writer pretty narrowly; and tho' I ſhall give his Arguments all the Weight they can bear, and never diſpute any plain Facts with him, yet his Ignorance, Malice, Inſolence, and Blunders in Reaſoning, muſt never paſs for Argument, and publick Spirit, ſo far as I am able to prevent it. I ſhall only deſire of him, that he will aſcribe Facts to right Cauſes, and lay the Blame where it is due; and then perhaps he may not appear perfectly Innocent himſelf. But if he cannot otherwiſe gain his Point, I ſhould adviſe him to believe in God, and go to Prayers, and try whether he cannot move Heaven to bring him into Play.

I am, SIR,

Your humble Servant,

Philarchus.

Petersburg, June 19.

The Miniſtry here have received Letters from Velt Marſhal Laſcy of the 31ſt paſt, adviſing, that as the ſaid General had then raiſed, very near the Palliſades of Aſoph, three Batteries, whereon were mounted 37 Pieces of Cannon, and had beſides 22 Mortars, which he deſigned ſhould begin playing upon that Town the next Day, he hoped to make himſelf Maſter thereof in a ſhort Time; tho' others aſſure, that Event will not happen ſo ſoon as is generally expected, Velt Marſhal Munich having taken with him into the Crimea, all the beſt Troops that were in thoſe Parts, and left not above Ten thouſand of the regular Forces to carry on the Siege of Aſoph. Rear Admiral Bredale is arrived near the laſt-mention'd Place from Pauloff, with 14 Gallies and ſeveral Prahms, with which it is thought, he will be able to prevent any Succours coming by Water to the Town of Aſoph.

Stockholm, June 29. The King of Sweden went laſt Saturday down to the Dallers, four Swediſh Miles from hence, to a Country Seat called Sanmar, and his Majeſty is expected back on Thurſday next.

Berlin, July 3. O.S. His Pruſſian Majeſty is expected at Welau To-morrow, and the next Day will paſs in Review before him 36 Squadrons of Horſe and Dragoons, which are encamped there for that Purpoſe.

Advertisement concerning this Book.

This Masterpiece of religious Policy was published, many Years since, in Latin, French, and Dutch: Mr. John Schipper, a Bookseller at Amsterdam, bought one of them at Antwerp, among other Books, and afterwards reprinted it. The Jesuits, being informed that he had purchased this Book, demanded it back from him; but he had then sent it to Holland. One of the Society, who lived at Amsterdam, hearing it said, soon after, to a Catholick Bookseller, by Name Van Eyke, that Schipper was printing a Book which concerned the Jesuits; replied, that if it was only The Rules of the Society, he should not be under any Concern; but desired he would inform himself what it was. Being told by the Bookseller, that it was The Secret Instructions of the Society, the good Father, shrugging up his Shoulders, and knitting his Brow, said, that he saw no other Remedy but denying that this Piece came from the Society. The Reverend Fathers however thought it more adviseable to purchase the whole Edition, which they soon after did, some few Copies excepted; from one of these it was afterwards reprinted, with this Account prefixed; which is there said to be taken from two Roman Catholicks, Men of Credit.
